

Vendor Nominee

Liz Fernwalt

Liz Fernwalt has been involved in the commercial truck and trailer industry for more than 28 years, building a career rooted in trucks, dealer relationships, and a lifelong connection to trucking. Her appreciation for the industry began early, inspired by her father, who drove trucks for 44 years.

Professionally, Liz began her career with a large property and casualty carrier, supporting commercial auto policies for sawmills, logging operations, and furniture manufacturers. She later joined EPG Insurance, where she became an underwriter for the commercial truck program and then national truck manager. In 2020, EPG was acquired by Assurant, where Liz now serves as Lead Account Executive on the Commercial Trucking team.

In her role, Liz works with truck and trailer dealers across the country, helping them offer extended service contracts, Used Truck Certified programs, physical damage, and non-trucking liability insurance, GAP coverage, and other point-of-sale products. She is especially proud of helping roll out a best-in-market extended service contract designed to give dealers broad, meaningful coverage options.

The UTA has been an important part of Liz's career for more than 18 years. She still remembers attending her first convention in 2007 and feeling immediately welcomed by members who made the organization feel like family. She is a member of the Tennessee Trucking Association and participated in events held by the Association.

Liz believes strong relationships are the foundation of a successful industry, and the connections she has built through the UTA continue to shape her career today. She is honored to be nominated for the Vendor/Supplier Dealer Group award.
