

JIM ZIMMERMAN

Jim grew up on a dairy farm in South Centurial, Pennsylvania. It was there he had his first experience with heavy machinery, trying out his dad's Mack tractor, drop deck, and dump and hopper bottom trailer.

By 14, he was running around the farm using that equipment. A year later he overhauled his first diesel engine in a farm tractor. He learned the hard way how to tackle that challenge, with his dad over his shoulder pointing out where he was about to turn wrong. That was the way it was done on their farm, with all the equipment maintenance in house. He says it was great experience.

Six years later, he began hauling farm equipment for a local manufacturer across the Midwest. It was in this role that he met and married the love of his life. The two ran team together, hauling produce from California to Pennsylvania.

Five years later, at the ripe age of 25, Jim sold his truck to the produce company he was hauling for. He then had a brief stint working at CAT as a truck engine training instructor before finding his way to Kenworth, where he's been for the past 20 years as a Corporate Used Truck Manager.
